DIDSBURY JOTTINGS

By A.C.H.

The Red Cross made $128.70 at the tea last Saturday. That was a grand showing. Several men came too, which also helps swell the total. One nice man came who was really hungry. The ladies found an extra piece of pie for him. He said, "This is the Red Cross, isn't it?" Yes, they answered. "Well, here take this." It was a dollar bill. So do you wonder we say he was a nice man?

We always thought bachelors were very smart. Sidestepping matrimony and all that. No cars. Lots of fun. But Prime Minister Mackenzie King has changed all that. Boy, what a fix he's in. And all because he is a bachelor.

A wife could have put him on the right track years ago. After Pearl Harbor. You know, woman's intuition. She would have said, "Mackenzie, darling, 'Now is the time. The people are stunned. Do it now while they are still groggy.' He would have said, "Do you really think so, my dear?" And that would have been the end of the argument. Look at all the prisoners men you meet. How did they get that way? Of course, it was a little woman. Always standing by, full of wisdom. The French have the idea. They say "Cherchez La Femme" which means "look for the woman." You do not have to look far. Our Premier is a shrewd man. But he made one grave mistake. He never married.

NOTED SHORTHORN BULL SHOT DEAD FOR DEER

A.J. Hadden, prominent Shorthorn breeder of Okotoks, reported his well known herd bull, Killarney Monarch 11th, had been found dead in his pasture, shot in the head by a careless hunter.

Killarney Monarch 11th, bred by Claude Gullinger of Telford, was one of the leading Shorthorn sires in the province. Many of his calves have earned prominence in western livestock shows.

HOG PRODUCTION DECLINING

Hog production in Canada has passed its peak and a substantial decline is in prospect according to the June survey issued by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. This is demonstrated by a drop of 31.6 per cent in the number of sows expected to farrow in the June to November period. The harvest declines are in Manitoba and Saskatchewan, namely 52.3 per cent and 18.8 per cent respectively. In Alberta the decline is 38 per cent. As the food production of hogs which the government from the prairie provinces it is only natural that the largest decline should be in this area.

Actual numbers of hogs on Canadian farms on June 1st, were given at 7,741,000 compared with 8,118,000 on June 1st, 1941. Alberta still led all Canadian provinces with hog numbers on June 1st totalling 2,278,000. Ontario second with 1,900,000 and Saskatchewan third with 1,599,400.

SKATING RINK IS BEING REPAIRED FOR WINTER SPORT

Local Citizens Hold "Bee" on Wednesday

Considerable discussion took place amongst a number of local citizens last Tuesday evening, regarding the skating rink in Didsbury, and it seems to be the opinion of most of the townspeople that the rink be put into operation this winter to provide skating for the young children at least.

The final outcome of the discussion was that a number of interested citizens gathered at the rink last Wednesday afternoon and began the work of repairing the fence and lighting system. Since that time the school children have been called in to help in the work and we understand that the rink is now almost ready to be flooded. Only cold weather and a caretaker is needed to assure skating in Didsbury this winter. The Town council now has a fairly attractive offer in any one who will take charge of the rink, and it is hoped that someone will be secured as soon as possible to run the rink.

Agriculture And The War

AGRICULTURE IS ONE OF CANADA'S largest industries and it has always played a vital part in the national economy. Wheat is the most abundant grain crop produced here, and the importance is illustrated in figures printed in the Statistical Year Book of the League of Nations, where the wheat crop in Canada in 1941-42 was given as 28 bushels per capita. In Australia the yield was 24 bushels per capita, in Argentina 17 bushels and in the United States seven bushels. The value of a great agricultural industry such as we have here, has been emphasized during the war, when the increased demand for food for the armed forces, and for those nations whose normal food supply has been disorganized, has made it a war industry of primary importance. Much tribute has been paid to the splendid contribution made by Canadian farmers to the United Nations war effort, in spite of the many difficulties created by wartime conditions.

British Show Fine Results

The farmers of Britain have likewise put forth a maximum effort to produce much-needed food crops during the war, and their work has resulted in outstanding success. Prior to 1939, only forty per cent of Britain's total food supply was produced at home. Today that figure stands at seventy per cent. This is in spite of the fact that although farm labour was "frozen" in September 1940, more than 40,000 skilled agricultural workers went into the armed forces. The problem of labour shortage was met in part by an increase in the use of farm machinery. In addition, a Women's Land Army, numbering 83,000 was organized, and Land Clubs and holiday camps also provided extra help during busy seasons. Prisoners of war, conscientious objectors, and on some occasions, members of the armed forces, have also assisted in relieving the labour shortage, which has been considered the biggest problem facing British farmers at this time.

Much Credit Is Due To Farmers

An intense program of education in the most modern methods of scientific farming has added to Britain's greatly increased agricultural output. Through the use of fertilizers much worn-out land has been again made productive, and there has also been a vast reclamation project involving more than 4,000,000 acres. In carrying out this undertaking 30,000 acres of swamp land were drained, and large tracts of land, formerly used for grazing, were converted to producing crops. It has been pointed out, however, that in spite of the fact that arable acreage has been increased by forty-two per cent, the actual amount of land cultivated is now two per cent below the pre-war level, due to the fact that a great deal of space is required for war factories and military purposes. These are only a few of the ways in which British agriculture has endeavoured to meet the demands of war. To them, and to the farmers of Canada, is due a large measure of credit for the present hopeful position of the Allied Nations.

New Chemical In Briquet Form Makes Sea Water Drinkable

A new chemical which removes the salt from sea water and makes it drinkable was demonstrated at Worcester, Mass., recently.

The chemical is in briquette size of a small candy bar. Enough of them can be carried by a flier to provide 14 days of drinking water. A briquet is dropped into a plastic bag filled with seawater and within 20 minutes it has precipitated the salt, which is filtered out as the flier sucks the water through a plastic tube.

Record Hard To Beat

Blind Woman, 84, Knits Ten Pullover Sweaters Every Month

Mrs. Emma Shapton, Drummond Rd., Niagara Falls, has what may well be an unparalleled war work record. She is 84 years old. She is totally blind. But a younger, handicapped woman would have trouble topping her score. Since war began she has knitted 600 pullover sweaters for the Canadian Red Cross—an average of 10 a month.

Mrs. Shapton lost one of her sons in the last war. A grandson, Sgt. Robert Hayes, R.C.A.F., now is a prisoner of war in Germany. For her, knitting is a serious patriotic enterprise. She feels it's her duty to see that men fighting overseas should have all the comforts she can supply. The sweaters are the most important items, but don't by any means make up her full quota of knitted garments. She also knits socks, mitts and scarves. She knits by touch and without assistance except when she casts on stitches. Then her daughter, Mrs. Clara Hayes, comes to her aid.

Mrs. Shapton, wife of Niagara Falls fire chief, John C. Shapton, has a record of service from the last war which she has maintained in this. In 1914-1918, she staggered her friends and neighbors with her astonishing turnout of knitted garments. Then and now it's all done on weekdays. She draws the line at knitting on Sunday.

Underground Factory

Discovered By American Infantry Unit Inside Siegfried Line

American infantrymen captured the first underground factory thus far found inside Germany—an airplane engine parts plant located in a 1,000-foot railroad tunnel.

An infantry unit patrolling no-man's land a mile west of the Siegfried line stumbled on the factory. It was not in operation, but was crammed with valuable machinery.

The discovery aroused speculation over how much of Hitler's war industry is operating underground in view of the terrific air assaults on all German industrial centres.

Bears African Name

One Of Canada's Cruisers Will Be Called "The Ugandan"

An Empire link, forged by naval tradition, will be formed shortly between Canada and the British Protectorate of Uganda when the cruiser Uganda is commissioned as a ship of the Royal Navy.

Specifications of the cruiser are cleared under security regulations. But by description of Navy Minister Macdonald, in press conferences, the Uganda, first of two cruisers to be added to the Canadian naval strength, is a medium cruiser.

She will bear, it is stated, gifts from the people of the African protectorate, and for these and traditional reasons shall keep her name, although it is marked down in Canadian Navy plans to designate the second or any other succeeding cruiser by the name of a province.

The naming of ships already follows a rigid plan. Tribal destroyers, fast and hard hitting craft, which carry a sting approximately equal to a light cruiser in pre-war days, are named after Indian tribes; destroyers after rivers and frigates, corvettes and minesweepers after towns.

United Nations Relief And Rehabilitation Administration To Give Aid To Liberated Areas

THE capitalized word UNRRA has already become a familiar symbol, if not too fully understood. It represents possibly the most hopeful sign that our world has known. If the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration can actually function, it is the best evidence we have that the altruism of the Atlantic Charter and the Four Freedoms is not merely resounding phrases.

When UNRRA came into being in Washington on November 9, 1943, the forty-four signatories pledged their nations to the policy that "immediately upon the liberation of any area by the armed forces of the United Nations, or as a consequence of the retreat of the enemy, the population thereof shall receive aid and relief from their sufferings, food, clothing and shelter, aid in the prevention of pestilence and in the recovery of health of the people, and that preparation and arrangements shall be made for the return of prisoners and exiles to their homes and for assistance in the resumption of urgently needed agricultural and industrial production and the restoration of essential services."

In the sessions of the Administration held a few weeks ago in Montreal, even this broad policy was enlarged to include defeated enemy countries, and one of the most heartening evidences of the broad charity that underlies UNRRA's activities was to see the representatives of Ethiopia and Greece, that in such recent time had suffered under Italian aggression, standing in their place to voice the belief of their governments that some relief should go to Italy to meet the tragic need of the millions dying from malnutrition and disease.

So among the first acts of this great humanitarian project was one to provide $500,000,000 to care for a defeated enemy.

All over Europe there is desperate need. UNRRA's part is not the least. It is to step into the breach at the moment to care for the 130,000,000 Europeans who are near starvation, and to be ready to come to the relief of 250,000,000 Chinese who are still under the yoke of Japan as soon and as promptly as may be. When the preliminary work has been done, other agencies will take up the long-term task.

It is a big and generous program and the total pool of resources that it will have to meet its great task will be in the neighborhood of two and a half billion dollars. The forty-four contributing countries will apportion to this task one per cent. of their national income, based on the year ending June 30, 1943. In this way the United States will be called upon to pay the major share, approximately half of the total. The United Kingdom's contribution will be in the neighborhood of $250,000,000, and Canada's, $75,000,000.

Not all of this amount will, of course, be paid in cash. Ten per cent. of each nation's contribution must be in a form negotiable outside the country. The other 90 per cent. will be in the form of credits for the purchase of goods and services. The contributions are not always free gifts; those countries that can afford to pay for these services will do so. France and the Netherlands have already expressed their intentions of paying for their relief.

This in brief is UNRRA. It is not only a broad plan of reconstruction but the evidence that even the bitterness of five years of war has not dried up the wellsprings of pity.—From Liberty Magazine.

INTROSPECT

Unless many people live and work in the intimate relationships of community life, there never can emerge a truly united nation, or a community of mankind. If I do not love my neighbor, whom I know, how can I love the human race, which is but an abstraction? If I have not learned to work with a few people, how can I be effective with many? Arthur E. Two New Projects Have Been Undertaken In Regina

"In recent weeks the Regina W.V.S. Centre has reported two projects they have undertaken which are particularly interesting," the directors of Women's Voluntary Services, National War Services mentioned in an interview.

"Plans have been made for participation in the Wartime Garden survey. The object of this survey is to learn how many wartime gardens were in operation in Regina last summer, the type of vegetables grown, the amount of the harvest. A meeting was held by the Regina Centre with a representative of the Agricultural Supplies Board at which final plans were formulated."

The other project being undertaken by the women of Regina and sponsored by the W.V.S. is the "re-making of garments for the needy of Europe," as the directors put it. "The Board of Education in Regina was approached for the use of sewing rooms in the public schools one evening a week." The directors continued "Apparently the library in one district is becoming the community centre for activities other than the giving out of books. One of the district leaders reported to the Centre that she had secured the library one afternoon a week for this purpose."

Precious Jewels Are Playing A Leading Role In Many Of The Important War Jobs

TODAY, diamonds, sapphires, rubies and garnets are all playing important roles as tools for war. Sapphires and rubies are used in watches and chronometers. For this job jewel experts say that they must be hard and free from flaws. Natural sapphires and rubies meet these requirements very well because they are almost as hard as diamonds.

They are also needed in meters and delicate instruments that go into airplanes, tanks and other war materials. In a fighter or bomber smashing at the crumbling walls of Fortress Germany, sapphires and rubies fly to battle behind the various dials on the planes instrument boards.

There are not enough of these jewels available for wide usage, so many of them are now made synthetically. Rubies and sapphires were synthetically produced by a French chemist in 1902. The original method has been improved to such an extent that it is now difficult to distinguish between a real and a synthetic jewel. Before the war the supply of these gems came from continental Europe. Now they are made in the United States.

Diamonds are doing one of the most important jewel jobs in this war. In 1944 the diamond was first used for drilling purposes. In that year, the diamond drill-bit was invented by a Swiss engineer. This tool was first used in the construction of the famous Simplon tunnel in Switzerland which was opened 38 years ago.

The diamonds used by industry are not the same as those gracing the third finger, left hand. While those used by industry are real enough, they are only fragments of diamonds and are called borers. The borers are chipped off in the mining of gem stones. Although probably the most important wartime job they have is in the diamond drill, they are also used in such precision instruments as cutting, grinding and machining tools.

In the navy, jewels are also playing an important role. To keep the men of naval gun crews from slipping off greasy decks into the ocean, jewels are now being spread under their feet. Synthetic garnets, made from aluminum oxide, are crushed and glued to the decks of battle ships to insure safe footing under all sea-going conditions.

DEEP SEA DIVING

A new, harmless method of mixing hydrogen gas with oxygen for deep-sea divers, has been discovered by a Swedish engineer, Arne Zetterstrom. After experimenting with animals, he has made the first decent himself, reaching a depth of 140 feet.

Placing a lotus lily seed, 250 years old, in an oven recently, a British scientist found in three days it put forth a shoot more than three inches long, with the root clearly perceptible.

unit, covering the invasion for listeners
at home.

Adjuster: "What's the matter with the lamp, madam?"

Lady: "It has all the faults of my husband, with none of his virtues."

Adjuster: "Please explain yourself."

Lady: "Well, it has a good deal of fuses about it. It is not remarkably bright, makes a good deal of attention, flares up occasionally, is always out at bedtime, and is bound to smoke."

"I know a man who has been married 30 years and he spends every evening of his life at home."

"That's what I call love."

"The doctor calls it paralysis."

Reverend Officer: "Have you any sears on you?"

Rookie (being examined): "No, but I can give you a cigarette."

The village doctor had two children who were acknowledged to be the prettiest little girls in the district.

While the children were out walking one day they happened to pass
two small boys, one of whom lived in the village and the other being a visitor.

"I saw," said the latter, "who are those little girls?"

"They are the doctor's children," replied the other boy. "He always keeps the best for himself."

CROP LOSSES FROM WEEDS

Low yields of grain are frequently
due to improper cultivation methods which permit weeds to grow abundantly. At harvest the farmer should estimate the amount of crop he has lost through weed growth. At the same time a new plan of cultivation should be considered in order to prevent similar losses another year.
There is still time this season to prevent much of the weed competition in your fields for next season.

After harvest cultivation will generate money with care either this fall
or in early spring prior to seeding.
These patches should be given a last thorough cultivation; this may be all that is required to eradicate them.

A plan of attack on weeds is necessary and can be most effectively done when done around the time of most vulnerable. Dept. of Agriculture.

Don't ever underestimate the lucky run of corn! While the greater part of the harvest of 60,000 acres planted

dian industry used over ten million

THE fight against V.D. is a family affair...

A laughing couple, dodging showers
of rice... beside... garden...
chubby babies...

These are scenes we know and like, because they're part of our lives... because they spell happiness... contentment.

But we know that these things don't "just happen." They have to be worked for, lived for. Protected, too, because of ever-present dangers which may spoil them.

Veneral Disease is a spoiler. In a cold, relentless way it can kill infants, rob the home of its breadwinner, cripple, destroy.
These are not mere possibilities. THEY HAPPEN... RIGHT HERE IN CANADA!

But, these things should never happen.
They can be prevented.

Young men and women can safeguard their future happiness together by making sure before marriage that V.D. will not blight their plans. A medical examination, including a blood test for syphilis, is a protection no couple can afford to pass up.

The expectant mother, too, may know for sure that her baby will be all she dreamed of.
Syphilis in the expectant mother rarely shows outward signs, and it is no respecter
of persons. An early check-up by her doctor, including a blood test, is a most essential,
yet simple, first step in protecting her baby's health.

Nor must the breadwinner neglect his part. The security of the home depends upon his ability to work regularly and efficiently.
Unsuspected syphilis, striking in middle life, may make the head of the home unable to provide for his family. It is wise to KNOW FOR SURE in time. Industrial medical examinations should include a routine confidential
blood test.

A blood test should not be looked upon as something unusual. It should be regarded for what it is... a normal safeguard of health, security and happiness.

was found guilty of making a false declaration when tried before the Pro-

The charge arose when Kuta, in making application for the release of his son, from army service, swore that he had no family help on the farm when in fact he had one other son at home capable of rendering assistance.
Kuta pleaded guilty to the charge and was sentenced to pay a fine of $50 and costs, or in default thereof to three months imprisonment in Port Sutherland Gaol. He defaulted on payment of the fine and was committed to gaol.In passing sentence the Magistrate stated that this offence was becoming too common and that he was making an example of the accused.A recent report of the Canadian Meat Board indicates that the average dressed weight of beef carcasses marketed in Canada has grown from 169 pounds per carcass in 1930 to 260 pounds in 1943, and to an average of 322 pounds to date in 1944.The Department of Agriculture is authoritative for the statement that production in Canada has passed its peak, or had on June 1, 1944, at that date the number of calves on farms in Canada was 7,750,000, which was five per cent below that of June 1, 1943,
and a decline of 22 per cent is indicated
in the number of swine to increase in the fall of 1944.If it could be kept up in the postwar period! The Bureau of Statistics tells us that the gross value of manufacturing in Canada in 1943, on a preliminary estimate, was the vast sum of $82,034,163,000 an increase of eleven per cent over the final 1942 calculation.
The estimated number of employees was 15,624,000 up by 10 per cent over the previous year. Wages paid in 1943 are estimated at around 1,410,340,000
—which is an advance of 160 per cent over 1932.AN ALABAMA BOY SPEAKSThe following statement came from a and ask: 'What can be done about it?'

To eliminate an effect one must hit at the cause. I assert the 'juvenile' delinquency is the result of adult delinquency. Why don't some reporters follow a few adults around Saturday night and see what they do and where they go, and find out what causes juvenile delinquency? We young people would rather see a sermon than hear one.Do you think mothers who call themselves "Christians" and stand in the whisky line are a good influence?
Not! Neither are the police officers who do so. Christian youth today is fighting against overwhelming odds.Give us mothers who we may safely follow. Give us mothers who are

OF CHILDREN'S SHOES LAST YEAR

In the last twelve months Canadian manufacturers made for Canadian children about 25% more shoes than in 1939—a fine job—done by the organization and direction of production by this Board's Footwear Administration and the cooperation of manufacturers. And this was accomplished while they were making more essential type shoes for war workers, who wear out their shoes faster than they do in their normal employment.THE DISAPPEARING ACT OF RUBBER-SOLE SHOESIn recent times most young Canadians get at least one pair of rubber-soled, canvas-top shoes
a year. But natural rubber supplies fell into enemy hands, and the manufacture of rubber shoes was drastically curtailed. We're now using retained and synthetic rubber in these shoes—there have been more of them this year and there will be more next year. Leather-soled shoes have had to be used in place of this rubber-clothed footwear but shoes made of leather need more care than running shoes. When they don't get it they wear out more quickly when they get wet they must be dried slowly, away from direct heat—and they should be greased also. It's not always a case of poor quality: it's poor care.LEATHER GOES TO WARYou've got to have good strong leather for children's shoes, but the soldiers are taking most of ours for their boots. For these leathers, a substantial portion of the hides came from South America and other countries. War cut down these imports and there have been difficulties in getting enough of these and our own hides turned into leather due to shortage of workers. The production of high grade leather shoes has, however, been main-tained at the highest level compatible with the labour and materials available. While shoe factories have been working overtime, factory capacity for civilian shoes cannot be expanded in wartime and it's not possible to change plants from the manufacture of one type of shoe to another—for instance, from women's to children's. The processes, the machines and the tools are different.TURNING HIDES INTO SHOESThere are very large war uses of leather
—for instance, in footwear. A soldier requires four pairs of shoes in the first year of his service and about three pairs per year thereafter. But what is more important, he needs to have his shoes re-soled four or five times a year. Hisshoes are of the highest quality leathers obtainable, leaving the other grades of leather for civilian use. Armies need leather for jackets and mitts. War farmers need leather for belting and —the best leathers—has gone to war.THE WARTIME PRICES AND TRADE BOARD

Post-War Army

Will Have Plenty Of The Best Equipment To Draw From

The Reserve Army is expected to get encouragement after this war in place of the seemingly grudging support it got after the First Great War.

One thing is sure: The Army will have plenty of the best equipment to draw from and there is every likelihood that the wide range of weapons from tanks and landing barges to Commando daggers and Sten guns will be used in peacetime training camps after the war.

The question as to whether the veterans will join the Reserve has already been answered in many cities where discharged men have found themselves irresistibly drawn back to the parade ground and the comradeship of arms.

One officer and recently: "When they quit the Army they all say it's the last time they want to see a uniform."

"I know, because I said the same thing after the last war. But in about six months' time they start coming around the armories, and the first thing you know they've got sergeant stripes and are hawking out commands."—Toronto Globe and Mail.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

The Maharaja

— By —

MORT MADOFF

McClure Newspaper Syndicate

Louise, scanning the society page of the morning paper, gasped audibly. Her voice became tense with excitement. "It's true! The Van Worthingtons have that handsome maharaja as their guest. Oh, Herbert, I'd give my right arm to be introduced to him!"

Herbert reluctantly withdrew his eyes from the sports page. "Aw, Louise, an Indian prince is human like the rest of us common folks."

His wife glared. "Common folks! That describes us perfectly, Herbert Bummel. We'll never... we'll never be anything else."

Herbert swallowed his coffee in one gulp. "And what have you to complain about, Mrs. Louise Clinker Bummel?"

Louise stared critically at her husband. There really wasn't much to censure. Herbert was a good husband, a dependable plumber who always made a decent living and never caused any trouble. But he was as romantic as Mulligan's stew.

Herbert set down his coffee cup, smacked his lips, picked up his cap, planted a methodical kiss upon Louise's brow, and bounded off to do his daily tinkering.

Louise sighed as she began to wash the breakfast dishes. The patter of the faucet became a majestic waterfall. India. Rubies and diamonds. Harems. Curious mystics who stare at the sun and scampers over hot coals. Voluptuous dancing girls. Handsome princes on white elephants. Turbans and the river Ganges. India—romance.

Even while preparing supper Louise couldn't forget the maharaja. If only Herbert would mix with the more socially prominent businessmen, meet the maharaja, and there was no changing him.

At supper Herbert grinned broadly. "Joe Peters sure messed up that Van Worthington job."

Louise felt prickly. "Van Worthington?"

Herbert paused a moment as he swallowed a mouthful of mashed potatoes. "Yeah. They needed some special plumbing in that fifty-foot mausoleum they call a bathroom. Insisted on a hurry-up job as they wanted it for this Indian individual. I couldn't guarantee to do it fast enough for them, so they gave it to Joe."

Louise blanched. "Herbert! If you had taken that job maybe we'd have been invited to that costume party. And I want so much to go. Here eyes moistened and her heart ached.

Herbert patted her hand. "I'm sorry, Louise, but even a plumber has ethics."

Louise sniffled. "The party is Thursday afternoon. All I'd want would be one look at that charming maharaja."

Herbert wrinkled up his nose. "It's beyond me what you women see in that Indian. Anyway, pass the meat hanks, eh, Louise?"

Thursday dawned bright and cheerful. But there was no sunshine for Louise. Beside her, Herbert was wheezing away for all he was worth. He was dead to the world, dreaming about monkey wrenches and lead castings.

At breakfast Herbert had a disgustingly good appetite. It meant nothing to him that he wasn't invited to the Van Worthington costume party. He hummed happily as he buttered his toast. Louise looked imploringly at him. "Please, Herbert, you don't have to put on an act for me."

Herbert stared wide-eyed. "This is no act. I'm expecting one of my biggest and most important jobs today."

Louise sighed heavily. "Is that all you ever think of—jobs and more jobs?"

Herbert munched contentedly. "It's our bread and butter, Louise. Our bread and butter."

At ten o'clock Louise met the mailman at the door. The Van Worthingtons would send her an invitation.

She just knew it. But the lone envelope contained an announcement heralding the opening of Gittleman's Haberdashery.

Twelve o'clock came and went. At three, Louise was frantically waiting for a liveried messenger to come dashing up on the porch. Thirty-three party would begin. Louise could almost hear the gay strangled music, the murmur of the guests as they awaited the maharaja, and then the hush as he made his regal entrance.

The jingling of the phone brought her back to reality. She blinked twice as she heard the briskness of Herbert's voice. "How'd you like to see the Indian fellow, Louise?"

Louise trembled all over. "Oh, Herbert, how did you manage it? But hurry, darling, the party has started."

Herbert was provokingly calm. "Don't worry, the shindig won't begin until we get there."

As she imagined the glittering dress of the other guests, Louise wailed. "But what shall I wear?"

"Better put on a pair of my overalls. And heels. But hurry!"

Louise flew upstairs and encased herself in Herbert's work clothes. Herbert was clever sometimes. Who would ever think of going to a society costume party in a plumber's outfit? They sped up the hill in the business truck. Louise wouldn't have cared if it had been a junk wagon. She, Louise Bummel, was going to the exclusive Van Worthington costume party. And she happily squeezed Herbert's arm.

An obsequious doorman hurried them inside. The guests stood aside respectfully as the Bummels made their way up the marble stairway. Louise tugged at Herbert's elbow. "Isn't the party being held downstairs?"

Herbert chuckled. "Party? Your maharaja is marooned in that fancy bathroom, and I'm the fellow who's going to rescue him and fix the busted pipes."

More Than Mere Form

People Becoming Naturalized Should Be Assured Of Cordial Welcome

In an Ontario court recently two young men, one of them in uniform, appeared for naturalization. The oath was administered. No interest was taken otherwise. No welcome to Canadian citizenship was extended. Nothing was said to them at all.

No doubt that is the usual custom, varied in some cases by questioning, but lack what ought to be a regular feature—congratulation upon the step being taken, and a word or two of welcome, not delivered with a superior air, but on a plane of equality. "You and I are alike Canadian citizens. You have all the privileges and duties of citizenship just as I have."

People who become naturalized should be made to feel that there is something more in this ceremony than signing papers or taking an oath as a matter of form.—Toronto Star.

Aircraft Workers

Make Many Valuable Suggestions That Save Time And Money

Canadian aircraft workers are contributing brains as well as brawn to speeding final victory over the Axis. Their ideas for doing jobs more quickly and cheaply have saved Canada countless man-hours and at least $667,529 in cash, according to an announcement by the Aircraft Industry Relations Committee recently.

A western woman aircraft worker who has come up with first-rate production suggestions is Miss F. Hassen of Edmonton, Alberta. She cut a 24-hour process four hours by devising a new way to grind and blunt metal propeller blades. In the same plant, Harry Klepacich, journeyman welder, won a $50 award in Victory Bonds by devising a grinder which reduces the time required on a motor mount operation from 16 hours to exactly 30 minutes.

But Dairy Goat Is Economical Source Of Nutritious Milk

The agriculture department, in a booklet on the milk goat in Canada, said that the remote communities of Canada are finding the milk goat "an economical source of wholesome, nutritious milk."

The department suggested that those who proposed going to the backwoods should consider taking a goat along.

The booklet itemized the following favorable points re goats:

They were cheap to keep as they could get along on slim rations; a doe supplied fresh milk at least twice daily; surplus milk could be used for making butter and cheese and goats' milk was particularly suitable for infant and invalid feeding; and for below-zero weather since the minute fat globules contribute to greater ease of digestion.

However, the booklet added, there were only 12,000 goats in Canada, their benefits to mankind were not appreciated and people in the north got their milk (cow milk) from cans.

HERE'S MY FEED PROBLEM.

How can I save money on feeding my calves?

HERE'S THE ANSWER

"Miracle" Calf Meal actually costs a little more because it is a top rate feed. With "Miracle" Calf Meal your calf will reach its full growth at least 4 months sooner, so you actually save 4 months feeding costs. This more than covers the extra cost of the feed.

To Give You
Better Service...

I'll Read Your Meter and Send
Your Bill Every
Two Months
Instead of Monthly

• This simplification will relieve the congestion in your billing department, as well as help us comply with a new paper curtailment. There'll also be a saving in gasoline and rubber, and that's important right now. This won't result in any reduction in staff but instead will allow them to devote more time to bettering the service to you.

• Other utilities operating under this plan have found it very satisfactory to both themselves and their customers. I'm sure you'll like it too. Six bills a year instead of twelve will save you time and trouble, yet your total cost will be exactly the same as before.

• The bill you receive this month will be your last on the monthly basis.
